Description

Erected in 1470 by the sculptor architect of the Lords of Piombino Andrea Guardi. A typical Tuscan Renaissance cloister, quadrangular in shape, it has light arches that rest on slender marble columns surmounted by floral capitals decorated in different ways from each other. This type of decoration is a typical example of classicism. The columns placed at the corners have carved the coats of arms of the Appiani and those of Piombino. In the center is the cistern, built in the seventeenth century
